A guided tour of the Chorzów Factory judgment

This year the LALIVE lecture was delivered by Professor Pierre-Marie Dupuy, who provided an insightful analysis into the well-known Chorzów Factory judgment, contending that the reparation principles relied on by arbitral tribunals in international investment disputes are often misunderstood.

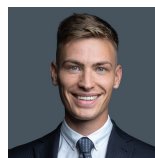

The lecture, titled 'A guided tour of the Chorzów Factory case: a review of reparation principles in International Investment Law', was held at the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies in Geneva on 29 September 2022. Michael Schneider, one of LALIVE's founders and senior counsel at the firm, and Professor Zachary Douglas, professor of international law at the Graduate Institute, introduced Professor Dupuy, who is emeritus professor at the Graduate Institute, and counsel as well as arbitrator in numerous interstate and investor-state cases.
